The University of California, Berkeley Office of the Vice Chancellor For Research : Framing the Questions: New Visions from the Arts and Humanities at Berkeley before purchasing it in order to gage whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised Framing the Questions: New Visions from the Arts and Humanities at Berkeley:

Well illustrated. This volume provides a window into research in the arts and humanities at UC Berkeley at the end of the 20th Century. The text focuses on particular examples, but in the aggregate gives us a "frame" or lens on trends that are reshaping, in significant ways, this crucial area of higher education. Contributors include Candace Falk, Shawn Brixey, David Wessel, Robert Alter, Gerald Vizenor, Mary Lovelace O'Neal, and others. List of resources at Berkeley.
